Air Corps S-SGT

Robert E. Vaughan, a recent visitor to Washington, D. C., is one of the few "deaf" men to make a good showing in the Army. Bob, actually hard of hearing but educated at the South Carolina School for the Deaf and Gallaudet College, has been in the Army Air Forces for two years, most of the time being stationed at Gowen Field, Idaho. An airplane armorer, he rates a staff sergeant's chevrons, which is a good rating for any enlisted man.

However, S/Sgt. Vaughan has experienced difficulties, for he says, "I am thoroughly wrapped up in red tape. One time I am qualified for overseas duty, another time disqualified. Woe's me."
